Retailing in Cambridge

Cambridge is one of the UK's premier retailing destinations. The combination of historic university and collegiate buildings linked together by pedestrianised cobbled streets creates a thriving and attractive retail core centred around Sydney Street, Market Street, Petty Cury, and Market Hill.

Total retail floor space in Cambridge is estimated at 1.49 million sq ft, which reflects its status as the dominant regional retail destination within its immediate catchment and beyond.

Grande Arcade and Lion Yard, comprise two adjoining shopping centres fronting onto Petty Cury and are anchored by a 670,000 sq ft John Lewis. Other retailers with representation here include Apple, Tesla, JD Sports, Mango, All Saints and Hollister.

The city's third covered shopping centre, the Grafton Centre, which is a 10 minute walk from the city centre, is being repositioned into a mixed use, life science led facility. This will reduce retail supply in the city centre and reinforce the historic retail core as the dominant retail provision within Cambridge city centre.

Situation

The property is situated on the northern side of the pedestrianised Petty Cury, diagonally opposite the entrance to Lion Yard Shopping Centre.

The property is adjacent to Boots freehold flagship store. Petty Cury benefits from excellent footfall levels, forming part of the core pedestrianised shopping circuit, linking the prime high street pitches with Grand Arcade and Lion Yard shopping centres.

Multiple national retailers within the immediate vicinity of the subject property include:

Market Square

The property fronts on to Cambridge's Market Square, which is set for redevelopment as part of the broader Civic Quarter project, which also encompasses the re-development of the Guildhall and Corn Exchange. The £15 million regeneration scheme aims to revitalise this central historic space with improved accessibility, new surfacing, and enhanced infrastructure to support year-round trading. A planning proposal is anticipated to be submitted in Autumn 2025, with the plans including the provision of 94 market stalls, 36 being permanent and 58 demountable to accommodate peak trading days.

The Civic Quarter project supports Cambridge City Council's commitment to achieving net-zero operational carbon by 2030, with proposals featuring biodiversity enhancements, improved water efficiency, waste management and smart energy systems (Cambridge City Council).
